Mystery of the disappearing trail

The strange apparition on the grass

The question on everybody's lips after Gin & Vomit's leisurely tour of the approaches to Kai Kung Leng was: What happened to the trail? After half an hour of impeccably marked hare droppings through town, village and field, the trail simply vanished into thin air.

A palpable air of uneasiness came over the runners as they blundered, squint-eyed, around the scruffy, tussocky no-man's land at the mountain's foot, somehow pulled towards a dull glare coming from a depression to the east.

As they approached the unearthly glow, a strange apparition emerged on the brow of the crater, vaguely humanoid in shape but strangely neonous, almost like a child's rendition of the "aliens" so common in Mid-Western USA. I had my phone with me, and enough wit to snap a quick shot, before a paralysing sensation gripped my brain. Then, something seemed to ease itself into my mind, very gently, like a dog's wet nose massaging the synapses of the hippocampus. I seemed to hear a voice, strangely disembodied but beguilingly seductive...

Greetings, Golden Balls, O Grand Master of the Northern New Territories! We come to you from the unfathomable sweeps of the cosmos, seeking out strange new worlds. Fear not, O GM! We have until recently concentrated our researches on farmers in what you call Mid-Western USA, abducting them from their fields so that we may perform anal probing on them, for that is our purpose in crossing the universe. But now our programme of anal probing is over. Instead, we have switched our attention to this populous region, to study the social and sexual significance of vanishing trails on your curious species. You go now.

I woke up lying in the grass with Golden Jelly gobbing on me in disgust, and made my way thoughtfully back to the buckets, where Big Moany was already calling for the circle to start.

Cut to 6pm. Big Moany is finishing off his beans on toast. Intercorser sits in the rocking chair knitting another pair of BM's favourite paisley socks. BM: Life is almost perfect. Now if we could just get a GM who could get the hash over with by 9 so I can get to bed at a decent hour... Cut to Golden Balls, ruminating in a cloud.

GB: HmMMM... [thinks]

Runners: Golden Balls, Golden Jelly, Bogbrush, Dram, One Eyed Jack, Billy Jizz, Eunuch, Liberace, Stingray, Cotton Bud, Go West, Big Moany, VD, Anna, Walky Talky.

BRIEF INSTRUCTIONS FROM THE HARE

Bring underwear you are happy to lose or destroy. Do not borrow someone else's underwear if they are going to expect it given back afterwards. There won't be an afterwards for that underwear.

Do not run in only underwear. Outerwear (running clothes) will be a must for this run.

If you don't normally run in underwear, then bring something but wear it like a hat, or carry it in your hand... just bring it...

If you do normally run in underwear and don't want to risk that feeling of swinging freely as you run, then run with a second set of underwear or wear a second set like a hat, or... On second thoughts just bring one set of underwear and be prepared to lose it...

If you are afraid of your fellow hashers seeing your body then wear your underwear outside your running clothes, or wear 2 sets of underwear, or wear a second set like a hat, or... Hang on a moment... Are you sure you're a hasher?
